

SUPERVISORS PASS ON CLAIMS

PROBATION OFFICER FILES INTERESTING REPORT; DOCTORS AND WRITING EXPERTS REFUSE TO REDUCE CLAIMS.

Bills against the county treasury claimed the attention of the county supervisors at their meeting at Redwood City Monday, and nearly 550 such bills were passed for payment. All members of the board were present at the meeting.

At a supervisors' meeting recently the claims of Professor E. O. Heinrich of the University of California; Carl Eisenschimmel, handwriting expert, and of Dr. E. A. Vickers, all for services rendered during the Hightower trial, were held up because they were considered excessive, and the clerk was instructed to so inform the claimants. At Monday's meeting letters were read from these gentlemen stating they could not see their way clear to make any reduction. Their claims were again laid over.

The reports of several county officers were read. Among these was a report from Probation Officer Francis Rapp as to the activities of his office during the year of 1921. This contained some interesting and instructive figures. It showed that on December 31, 1921, there were 29 wards in institutions and 27 in private homes, all under the care and custody of the officer. The total number of wards appearing before the juvenile court during 1921 was given as 86; the total number of wards committed through the juvenile court was 16, and the total number dismissed through the juvenile court 63; 7 were accepted by transfer; the total expense of maintenance of wards during the year was $7622.59; salary and expenses for the year amounted to $300.14, and the sum of $784.20 was received from parents for the support of wards during the year.

The report of Dr. F. Holmes Smith, health officer, was ordered filed. Dr. Smith reported that several cases of diphtheria were reported in January, and that an epidemic of disease not unlike influenza was developing.

The report of the County Social Service Commission was filed and accepted on motion of Supervisor Hickey, seconded by Supervisor MacBain. Recommendations were made for county aid in several cases, which were approved. A statement of expenditures for the month of December was also ordered filed.

Louis J. Rogers of Burlingame advised the clerk by letter that he was desirous of purchasing one $1000 bond of the Burlingame grammar school district. This communication was ordered referred to District Attorney Franklin Swart.

Supervisor John MacBain addressed the board regarding the condition of the state highway through Redwood City, and requested that $1500 be appropriated from the general fund of the county for the purpose of repairing the pavement. A motion that a resolution be introduced received the unanimous vote of the board, and the sum of $1500 was ordered transferred for this use, the balance of the cost to be paid out of the third district road fund. Following this action, the board adjourned to Monday, February 20th.

VIGILANTS PLAN RACING OPPOSITION

Organization Proposes to Unite Many Other Bodies in Movement Against Reopening of Tanforan.

The opening of the racetrack at Tanforan for the reviving of horse racing in California is not to be without opposition, according to an announcement from San Francisco. The "Vigilant Committee," an organization that has for its object the raising of the moral tone of the city of San Francisco, has expressed its determination to call on other organizations of the city to join it in a concerted movement against the project.

Opposition to the proposed revival of racing was voiced by the Vigilant Committee Wednesday morning at the California Club house, 1750 Clay street.

Mrs. Robert Armstrong Dean was named as head of a committee to interview Rudolph Spreckels, one of the proponents of the plan to open a racetrack at Tanforan.

Co-operation with other women's organizations will be asked by the committee in opposing horse racing, and letters to this effect will be sent to the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the San Francisco Congress of Mothers, the City Federation of Women's Clubs and the California Civic League of Women Voters.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

The new requirement of the income tax law that returns shall be made of gross income of $500 or more, regardless of the amount of net income upon which the tax is assessed, necessitates careful computation on the part of the taxpayer. "Gross income" includes practically every dollar received by the taxpayer during the year 1921 in salaries, wages, commissions, rents, royalties, interest on bank deposits, cash dividends on stock, "or income from any source whatsoever." "Net income" is gross income less certain deductions provided for by the act, including all business expenses incurred in the conduct of a business, trade, profession or vocation.

Certain expenditures, however, are not deductible as a business expense when made for the purchase of articles more or less permanent in character, or for permanent improvement of property. For example, a merchant would not be allowed to deduct the amount expended in the erection of a new store, or a farmer the cost of a new tractor or thrashing machine, since such investments are held to be capital investments. The law expressly prohibits the deduction of family or living expenses, such as rent for a dwelling, repairs to a dwelling, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, servant's wages, and similar items. Amounts spent during the year 1921 for any of these items are not deductible.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Terrace and daughter, Janette, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Peck.

BOLD HOLDUP STAGED AT MOSS BEACH INN

Three Masked Robbers Shoot Man Who Engages Them in Gun Duel.

Sunshine Valley Tavern at Moss Beach was the scene of a sensational holdup Monday morning, when three masked bandits entered the place and attempted to rob the proprietor, Aldo Facchini, and several patrons at the point of revolvers. The fact that the robbers were not successful is due to the courage of J. Jupio, a barber, who drew a gun and, dropping behind a pool table, opened fire on the bandits and caused them to withdraw without any booty.

Aldo Facchini, proprietor, and three patrons were in the barroom of the tavern when an automobile stopped in front and three masked men entered. Brandishing their revolvers, the bandits ordered those present to hold up their hands. All complied with the exception of Jupio, who dropped behind a billiard table and endeavored to pull out his own revolver. The revolver stuck in the holster, and the bandits immediately opened fire. The first shot hit Jupio in the breast and three others went through his hat. He finally succeeded in getting his revolver into action and fired three shots. The bandits turned and fled. They entered the waiting automobile and drove away toward San Francisco.

As the bandits fled Jupio collapsed. A physician was summoned, who pronounced his condition to be serious. He was removed to the San Francisco Hospital.

Constable S. A. Landini went to Moss Beach and made an investigation, taking statements from all those present in the barroom. The cover of the billiard table was found to be torn from the bullets of the bandits, and several holes in the wall gave mute evidence of the battle which had been staged. Two bullets from Jupio's revolver were found lodged in the wall near the door, and, as the third could not be found, Jupio's statement that he hit one of the bandits was given strength.

JOHNSON GETS DRAW IN BOUT AT TACOMA WITH F. FARMER

Floyd Johnson's bout with Johnnie Hogan at Tacoma last Thursday night was called off, as Hogan was in a hospital seriously ill. Frank Farmer, a battle-scarred veteran who has served as a trial horse for many of the greats and near-greats of the ring, substituted for Hogan and held his more youthful opponent to a draw.

Tomorrow night at Milwaukee, Oregon, Johnson will box ten rounds with Jack Savage. This will be Johnson's first bout of over six rounds.

Mrs. Bettie Francis of Vero, Fla., arrived in South San Francisco this week to stay with her sister, Mrs. George Kiessling. Mrs. Kiessling, who recently underwent a serious operation at the South San Francisco Hospital, returned to her home last Thursday. Mrs. Kiessling is improving, but is still confined to her bed.

NO MEETING OF THE TRUSTEES THIS WEEK

No Bids Are Received for the Laying of Paving in Alleys.

There was no meeting of the board of city trustees Tuesday evening at the city hall, as planned on adjournment Monday evening of last week. This meeting was planned to consider bids for the laying of paving in a number of alleys in town. As a matter of fact, no bids for the work were received, so no meeting of the board on this matter was necessary.

A petition against the work being done at this time had been circulated by property owners along the alleys involved and was to have been presented to the board at this meeting. As no bids for the work were received, the paving will probably be dropped temporarily.

TRE BANDITI CHE ASSALTANO LA TAVERNA DI MOSS BEACH

Tre banditi mascherati entrarono nel Sunshine Valley Tavern a Moss Beach Lunedì scorso, ma furono però messi in fuga ed impauriti da J. Jupio, il quale dal di dietro di una tavola aprì il fuoco contro di essi.

Jupio fu però colpito al petto da un colpo sparato dal banditi e gravemente ferito.

Tutti poterono fuggire e far perdere ogni traccia di se stessi.

GREAT MEETING AT CITY HALL TONIGHT

Public Invited to Attend and Hear Plans Whereby 40,000 Acres of Tideland to Be Improved.

A large gathering is expected this evening (Thursday) at the special meeting called by the Chamber of Commerce at the city hall. The matter under discussion will be the great reclamation scheme, whereby it is planned to convert about 40,000 acres of tide and swamp land in San Mateo county into home and industrial sites. This land lies along the bay shore from Hunter's Point to the site of the Dumbarton bridge.

This is one of the greatest improvement plans ever fostered in this part of the state, and if put into successful execution will mean a tremendous future for this county. The plan embraces the building of ports and docking facilities all along the bay front in the county, and will mean that eventually a continuous city will come into being from Dumbarton to the Golden Gate. Every property owner and every resident in this county and in San Francisco is interested in seeing a successful culmination of the great scheme, and tonight the plan in definite detail will be laid before all who attend the meeting.

It is expected that representatives from many Chambers of Commerce and improvement organizations in the county will be present. In addition to these a number of men prominent in civic and industrial life in San Francisco will address the meeting to explain the great plan. Among these will be City Engineer O'Shaughnessy, Supervisor Richard Welch and Haven A. Mason of the City Planning Commission.

This should prove a most interesting meeting and one that will have an important bearing on the future of this city and the whole of San Mateo county.

TIE FIDO UP OR GET A LICENSE.

Poundmaster Ringue was recently instructed by the city trustees to take steps to reduce the number of unlicensed dogs running at large in town, and within a few days several dogs have fallen victims to his vigilance. If you have a dog you think a good deal of you'd better get a license for him, as Mr. Ringue declares he's out to exterminate the unlicensed canines of the town.

It's poor business to be a good fighter if you're not a good finisher.

NESSUNA RIUNIONE DEI TRUSTEES

I trustees della città non tennero nessuna adunanza Lunedì sera come era stato stabilito.

Essi credevano di aprire offerte per il selciato dei chiassetti ma non avendo ricevuto alcuna offerta la riunione fu creduta inutile.

BRIDGE FIGHT FELT OVER STATE

PENINSULA CHAMBERS TO SEND DELEGATION TO SACRAMENTO TO URGE DISCHARGE OF HEAD OF HARBOR COMMISSION.

The fight to oppose the installation of a drawbridge on the Southern Pacific line at Seventh and Channel streets in San Francisco is likely to develop into a struggle that may rend political circles and rings throughout the state.

On the one hand is Fred Moody of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners, who is seemingly using his office to force the building of the bridge, much desired by the Moody estate, heavy property owner in the district.

On the other side, and for once pulling together, is the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and the Chambers of Commerce and civic organizations of the peninsula. The contention of the railroad and the organizations is that such a drawbridge would materially delay trains used by commuters living on the peninsula.

The struggle has now reached the point where the Chambers of Commerce are demanding of Governor W. D. Stephens that Fred Moody be discharged from his office for using that office to further his own ends.

It is planned that representatives from the peninsula organizations will go to the state capital in a special car and demand that Governor Stephens give them a personal hearing. Some 160 persons have signified their intention of going in this party, and the date of the meeting is to be set as soon as the governor is heard from.

It is said that the fight over the bridge may have some effect on the chances of Governor Stephens returning to office, as interests antagonistic to him in Los Angeles have taken the matter up and will make political ammunition of it in the coming campaign.

Moody's friends are powerful politically and will fight for him to the last ditch.

POSTMASTER POWER ISSUES PERMIT FOR POSTAGE METER

Postoffice permit No. 1, the first granted on the Pacific Coast authorizing the use of a postage meter, has been issued in San Francisco to the Bank of Italy by Postmaster James E. Power.

No more "licking" postage stamps; no more sealing letters, for the new machine performs both of these functions in one operation. In addition—and from the point of view of the postal authorities this is the most important feature—the postal meter cancels its own stamp imprint, obviating the necessity of running letters through the cancelling machine at the postoffice.

As a time and labor saver, the postage meter is unique. Its value to large establishments in handling their mail has been demonstrated during the period of experimental use, and its potential possibilities in saving taxpayers' money, through the reduction of the government's expenditure in printing stamps, is apparent.

When the machine is issued, the customer pays for a certain number of stamp imprints and the postoffice department adjusts the mechanism to turn out exactly that number and no more. The lock is then set, and the customer proceeds to use the machine. When the full amount has been printed the machine stops, and cannot be used until the postal representative resets it.

The invention of the postage meter is comparatively recent and its installation has been effected in only a few of the larger Eastern institutions—notably the Federal Reserve and National City banks in New York. The meter secured by the Bank of Italy will be the first one in the West.

Some of the bridegrooms ought to do the blushing when they consider the incomes on which they expect to support their wives.

Like Mother Used to Make--

—we do not hesitate to tell what is in our bread. Here it is:

Best wheat flour obtainable. Compressed yeast. Pure filtered water. Salt. Pure lard. Granulated sugar and condensed milk.

That's the recipe, and if followed carefully we know you can bake mighty fine bread.

But that isn't the point. It is the work we can save you—the fact that you can have it FRESH every day and that, baking as we do in large lots, we can bake it and deliver it to you much CHEAPER.

It's wholesome—It's appetizing—it should be on your table three times every day.

A Pointed Ad By a Printer

The following, which appeared as an advertisement in the San Mateo News-Leader Tuesday of this week, is worth clipping out and hanging up in every store, factory or business house in South San Francisco:

A man came into our office yesterday and told us an interesting little story. This man was a newcomer in San Mateo county, had recently built a new house, and a local insurance man called to see if he could not handle the insurance. In introducing himself he handed the newcomer his card, at the same time urging that the local agents be given the preference.

Turning the card over the newcomer noticed that it was printed in San Francisco. "I will get my insurance from a San Francisco agent, as I see you get your printing done there," said the newcomer. The insurance agent hummed and hawed, and finally said the cards were given to him by a friend. Do you think that was a true statement?

Next our friend sent for a laundryman. Much to his surprise he found the laundry charge sheets were printed in San Francisco. "I will patronize the laundry that has its printing done locally," he said.

"Why do these people urge us to patronize the local merchants, and at the same time have their printing done outside of San Mateo county?" asked our new-found friend.

And, as a matter of fact, why do they? There are just as good printing shops in San Mateo county as there are in San Francisco, and the prices are as low in the local shops as they can possibly be, consistent with high-grade work and a legitimate margin of profit.

Patronize your local printer, and you will find it a great help in drawing trade to your door.

Judged by the magazine advertisements there are a good many more schools of thought than schools of action.

A farmer's life would be pretty dull if it weren't for the fun he gets out of watching the town farmers' experiments.

One thing that makes the tired business man tired is being made the victim of a new "drive" about every week.

There have been some powerful books in history, but few of them has had as much influence as the modern check book.

MURDERED MOVIE DIRECTOR HAD DAUGHTER

The murder of William Desmond Taylor, director at Famous Players-Lasky movie studios, at his home in Hollywood, Calif., brought to light a hidden chapter in his life. He had been married in 1901 and was the father of a 19-year-old daughter who now lives with her divorced mother in New York. The shooting of Taylor has brought many prominent movie stars into the limelight. Pictures are of Taylor, the wife who divorced him and who is now Mrs. E. L. Robins, and his daughter. Lower picture shows the room in Taylor's Los Angeles home where he was shot. Arrow indicates a desk from which letters were stolen, written by Mabel Normand, famous movie star.

THE FIGHT FOR TAX REDUCTION

The lumber interest of the Northwest is leading in a movement for tax reduction. It is presenting the facts as they affect the operation of an industry that employs tens of thousands of workmen and pays millions in taxes.

The lumbermen are not asking any exemption from taxation, but they are pointing out the fact that confiscatory tax burdens are preventing the investment of capital in productive enterprise.

As a remedy they do not advocate any radical measure or the doing away with our long-established system of a general property tax. They emphasize, however, the necessity for reducing the number of tax-levying bodies which now exist in every city, county and state. They advocate the cutting out of duplication and waste in our school system and in the administration of public affairs generally, and retrenchment right down the line.

A climb from $37,446,785.05 tax in 1916 to $72,666,820.11 in 1920 for the state of Washington is out of all proportion to what industry can hope to earn under normal conditions. Washington is typical of other western states. Ever citizen should join in the drive for LESS NEED OF REVENUE rather than for more revenue. New forms of taxation or new sources to tax will not help the situation unless ways are provided for corresponding decreases in other tax demands.

Taxation is reaching the point of confiscation. Retrenchment in government expenditures must be made if productive enterprise secures capital for growth, development and the employment of labor in any industry.—Industrial News Bureau.

TWO FACTS

Two facts before the American people are worthy of consideration at this time.

First, this is the year for holding congressional elections—for returning some of our solons to Washington and leaving others at home to repent of their shortcomings.

Second, congress has come to life on the subject of a soldier bonus law. Nearly five years after the close of the war, when all other nations have enacted readjusted compensation legislation in favor of their ex-service men, we are still at sea, haggling and scrapping over ways and means, with thousands and thousands of veterans destitute and out of employment.

If congress ever intends to do justice to these men it should be done now, when they are still alive and most need it. It would be only an insult to their memory to pay it to their descendants after they are dead and gone.

It would seem that congress has one eye on the approaching elections and the other on the American Legion vote, but even that is better than the utter callousness that has existed heretofore.

It's about time for the men to get together and formulate new styles in dress. Knee breeches and bare legs would make a fair season's start toward exhibiting their masculine charms.

Some people claim there are no 100 per cent fools in the world, but we don't believe it. We know of one who placed an honest valuation on his property in his tax return.

Prominent road engineers are advocating wider automobile highways. That would allow more room for sidestepping.

Thought Coupons Cash.

Foreign paper money differs materially from United States bills, when printed on flimsy stock and lacking the "feel" of banknote paper. Some members of the French delegation believed cigar store coupons were money when they first arrived in Washington; or did until they tried to spend them. Buying cigars and cigarettes, several delegates paid for them in large bills. Change they received in one and two-dollar bills, silver and coupons for the amount of the purchase. They picked it all up together and crammed it in their pockets. A little later, paying for a bottle of green apple juice, they proffered a "green certificate" believing it to be collateral.—The Argonaut.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson
© Western Newspaper Union.
THE IRON NERVE OF SAM HOUSTON, THE VIRGINIAN

Courage and daring were qualities characteristic of all the scouts who won their right to fame in frontier history, but for iron nerve and pure grit Sam Houston was the peer of them all. Perhaps he inherited his fortitude from his father, who was a soldier in the Revolution; perhaps during his long stay among the Cherokee Indians he learned that a warrior bears pain without flinching.

Houston was a Virginian who had entered the army and risen to the rank of ensign at the outbreak of the Creek war in 1813. Gen. Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory," had taken the field against the Creeks and, after a series of battles in which the Indians were defeated, they made a last stand at their fortified encampment, Tohopeka, in the Great Horsehoe bend of the Tallapoosa river, Ala.

During the assault on this fort, a barbed arrow struck Houston in the thigh. He tried to pull it out, but failed. The agony was frightful. Calling to a soldier, Houston commanded him to extract the shaft. Twice the man tried and failed, then begged to be relieved of the task when he saw the unspeakable torture he was causing.

"Try again," commanded Houston. "And if you fail, I'll run you through with my sword!"

The third attempt was successful, and as the barbed shaft was torn from the flesh, it was followed by a gush of blood. General Jackson, seeing Houston's wound, ordered him to the rear. The young ensign waited until Jackson had passed on, had a surgeon bind up the wound, and in a few minutes he was back in the thick of the fighting.

The high peak in Houston's adventurous life came in 1836 when, at the head of a little army of 800 Texans, with the battle cry of "Remember the Alamo!" on their lips, he defeated the hordes of Santa Anna, the Mexican dictator, at San Jacinto, and won freedom for Texas. He was elected first president of the Lone Star republic.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, Houston, who was governor of Texas, was bitterly opposed to the secession of that state from the Union. The Confederates forced him to resign. They required all men over sixteen to register and to carry a pass while traveling. Houston refused to do either. Once they stopped him and demanded his pass. "San Jacinto is my pass through Texas!" thundered the brave old man as he rode on.

Houston died at his home in Huntsville July 26, 1863, with the name of Texas on his lips.

There is a "talking automobile" on the market. That's fair enough. Considering all the things that have been said to an automobile it ought to have a right to talk back.

"Hermit Kingdom" of Corea

Kneading Bread in the Street.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Corea, the first part of mainland Asia to come under Japanese control, has in large part received its material from western civilization at second hand through Japan. And in spite of the American type coaches and even dining cars that are now drawn in modern express trains over heavily ballasted railroads, and the trolley cars, telegraph lines and electric power stations that are encountered by the visitors to the chief cities, Corea in many ways still preserves the quaintness of its "Hermit Kingdom" days.

It was only in 1882, a generation after Commodore Perry opened up Japan, that Corea, or Chosen, by making a treaty with the United States, gave up officially its policy of exclusion. Foreigners took up their residence with official sanction at Chemulpo, the seaport of the capital, Seoul. Even with this foothold, however, the unwelcome visitors pushed their way but slowly into other parts of the kingdom; and as late as 1897 only a relatively small portion had been visited by white men. Now Japanese influence and Japanese explorers have gone everywhere in the "Land of Morning Calm," and only the wilderness along the Manchurian border remains relatively unknown.

European clothing is no longer a curiosity in Seoul, but still the old garb of the natives greatly predominates. The first feature to strike the visitor, in fact, is likely to be this matter of clothing. The universal adoption of white, the singular hats, the footgear, all strike the note of quaintness. White clothing is the emblem of mourning in Corea, as it is in Japan and China; the mourning period is three years. On the occasion of the death of a royal personage the entire population was required to put on white. This custom is said to be accountable for the people having adopted white clothing for ordinary wear, that they might be ready for the inevitable when it should come, either in their own or in the royal family.

Queer "Pill-Box Hats."

The ordinary hats of the Korean men are absurd little "pill-box" affairs, shaped in general like American stiff straw hats, but with high small crowns which cause them to sit on the top of the head as though adults were wearing the hats of children. To add to the bizarre appearance, these little hats are tied in place under the chin with plain black tape. Men of wealth often wear a loop of beads, the ends attached to the sides of the brim and the loop hanging in front to the waist.

Many years ago—long before the "western barbarian" reached the shores of Chosen—the Koreans were noted among their Chinese and Japanese neighbors for the skill and taste displayed in textile manufactures, and the products of their looms could be found side by side with their pottery in all the markets then open in the East.

By the slow but sure degradation of wars, insurrections and invasions manufactures and arts in Corea gradually lost their value in both quality and quantity, until today her people, rich and poor alike, are dependent upon China and Japan for a large percentage of their clothing and pottery.

There is, however, one branch of manufacture, the working of bronze, in which Corea easily leads, the use of this metal for domestic purposes being peculiar to this country. The bronze, which is of good quality, hard, and takes a good polish, is of an alloy of copper and tin, with a small percentage of zinc and a trace of iron. The bronze spoons, with which every family is liberally supplied, are models of grace, as are the hibachis or fire-pots, which are largely exported to Japan. These graceful bronze bowls are applied to every domestic use imaginable. The same material is used in the manufacture of tobacco pipes in universal demand, and much taste is displayed in their ornamentation.

Seoul an Interesting City.
Seoul, with its population of over 500,000 dominates the cities and towns of Chosen, and has only one competitor in size, Ping-Yang, with a population of about 175,000. The main streets of Seoul are wide and well laid out. The stores generally are but one story, hardly deserving the title of buildings. The means of conveyance over the roads, for the most part unpaved, is rickshaws, drawn by boys who are swift and tireless.

The street scenes of Seoul offer great variety for the kodak, the burden-bearers of both sexes furnishing a constant change of scene; most of them being willing victims, entirely satisfied with a small tip. At the wood market on one side of the main street the patient steer is seen reclining under the weight of a load of logs which would cause a wagon to groan, and one wonders how he will ever regain his footing when his master makes a sale and the time comes to deliver the goods. These animals appear to thrive under their burden-bearing, being sleek and well kept.

How They Make Bread.

The native bread of Seoul does not seem very attractive to foreigners after they have seen the process by which it is made. However, if its excellence was alone dependent on the thoroughness with which it is kneaded, the bread which "mother used to make" would suffer by comparison. After mixing, the dough is placed on a board in the road in front of the little bakeshop. Then two stalwart Koreans proceed to pound it with great mauls. It is not claimed that the quality of the bread is improved by the addition of impurities in the way of insects and dust which naturally result from the open-air treatment, but if one objects to eating it, a native will quote a proverb which, being interpreted, runs: "He who would enjoy his food should not look over the kitchen wall"—a maxim not without force in countries occidental.

A visit to the imperial palace brings up mental pictures of more golden days in Corea. The buildings and grounds are extensive; a handsome pagoda standing on a small island is surrounded by a lotus pond, a wealth of trees adding to the beauty of the place. During the reign of the old emperor, his fear of assassination was so great that it is said 300 bedrooms in the palace were kept constantly in readiness for him, no one knowing which one he would occupy on any night.

Protected by a Great Wall.

One of the most enjoyable trips from Seoul is by rickshaw past the Peking or Independent gate through a picturesque road winding among the mountains. The construction of the great wall of Corea at this point appears a marvel of engineering skill, so seemingly inaccessible is this mountain fastness. Proceeding about two miles, one passes the water-gate, where the wall crosses the river and where in time of attack the iron gates in these great arches were let down to protect the city. The view of this crossing is one of the finest in Corea. Another ride of three miles takes the traveler to the White Buddha, far from the highway, beside a clear mountain stream, stands a great boulder, on the face of which, carved in relief, is the sitting figure of Buddha.

Seoul possesses what is believed to be the third largest bell in the world. In shape and general outline it is of Japanese type. In fact, the Koreans claim that the bells of Dai-Nippon were modeled after those of Corea.

The climate of Corea is not very different from that in similar latitudes in the United States, from New York to North Carolina. Structurally the houses are interesting, for the Koreans have anticipated our hot-air furnace by many hundreds of years. Every house is raised a foot or two above the ground, and a wide flue runs beneath the floor, emerging at the other end in a tall chimney, made in the north from a hollow log. When a fire is built at the entrance to the flue, the smoke and heat are drawn beneath the house, keeping the rooms warm during even the coldest days of winter.

And Finally the Fine.

"What comes after the purchase price?" asks an auto ad.

The order may vary somewhat, but it is usually the insurance man, the tire dealer, the accessory fiend; and half a dozen members of the motorcycle squad.—Buffalo Express.

Motorcycle Spray.

A farmer's motorcycle came in useful this summer. He had 500 acres planted to potatoes, and these were threatened with destruction by the potato bug. With his horse-drawn sprayer he could only cover about 35 acres a day, and in the hot weather which prevailed this would have spelled ruin to his crop. But the rancher was a resourceful soul, and he attached an insecticide-spraying outfit to the sidecar chassis of his motorcycle, utilizing the power of the machine for traction and for spraying. With this outfit he found it possible to spray 180 acres per day with pure green and so save the situation.

KITTIE WITCH STORIES.

(By Auntie Ruth.)

Chapter 4.

The Great Adventure

It was plain Kittie Witch had begun to think very well of herself. Hadn't she sent old Speckle squawking? And the big, black woman tumbling? Surely the time had come to carry out a secret plan—to fight the Barn Cats! She said nothing of this to Shep. He had often warned her never, never to wander down that way or those great brutes would tear her to pieces. But he didn't realize how she had grown. She'd show him.

Kittie Witch had often been in the Big Barn with Jeanie in broad daylight. Then not a cat showed himself, but the kitten knew they lived there for she heard many a smothered snarl and sneaking steps in far corners. At night the yard shadows were full of silent, hulking shapes that always kept at a respectful distance from Shep's kennel. A sudden glimpse of their big, fiery eyes glaring at her from behind bush or fence corner always made her heart stand still in terror, though she always spat and glared back spunkily. She longed to grow big enough to walk right up and say "Sptz!" in their ugly faces. Now perhaps she was big enough!

"Of course, she must be on the lookout for some kindness to do for Mammy Chloe so she'd change her mind about that 'hoo-doo,' but, meanwhile, she'd fight those cats."

The very next night, when Shep was out in the orchard burying a bone, Kittie Witch started on the big adventure. She thought she was being very clever and careful, slipping along under the weeds, keeping ever a sharp lookout for the enemy. A great moon made it almost as light as day. How she longed to romp about and chase the crickets and night birds! She promised herself she would—afterward. Stern business must come first.

She slunk along like a wild creature thirsting for blood. What was that? A growl? Instantly she flattened herself against the ground, heart pounding, eyes and ears alert. Not a sound. Not a movement save the flutter of a startled moth. She must have been mistaken. On she crept, ears flat, eyes glaring green fire.

How far was it to that Big Barn anyway? She must have come miles! Could she ever find her way back? Perhaps she'd missed the path. Cautiously she raised her head to look and—froze in her tracks! Straight before her, on the top rail of a fence, was the biggest, blackest cat in the world! His big yellow eyes blazed, his tail lashed angrily from side to side, from his wide, red mouth came the most blood-curdling snarl and yowls the kitten had ever heard, as he glared right at her.

Poor little Kittie Witch! She suddenly realized how unequal would be the struggle. Oh! for Shep's protecting care! Why, oh, why, had she disobeyed him?

"Grr-rr!" threatened the swaying giant. Kittie Witch tried to scream—to run, but couldn't move. With a shriek the great brute hurled itself straight at the helpless kitten—and beyond! Instantly there came sounds of an awful struggle just behind the clump of grass into which the kitten had unconsciously backed.

Flip! and there leaped a rabbit whose nap she had disturbed. When the dazed kitten could get herself in action, how she ran! Whiff! Just like that. She darted into the kennel so suddenly that the startled old dog said "Whoof!" quite sharply, but Kittie Witch wasn't afraid. She snuggled down between those big, friendly paws with a blissful sigh, grateful for such a haven in this war-torn world. But she wouldn't tell Shep a thing.

It took Kittie Witch several days to recover from that scare. She was so good and quiet that Jeanie thought she was sick. Mammy Chloe hoped she was. "I jes caint res' easy in mah mind wif dat witch cat round!" "Bad Mammy Chloe!" scolded Jeanie. "She's the cutest and smartest pet I ever had and I don't want her to die. Can't we do something?" wailed Jeanie.

"Nemmind, honey chile." Chloe couldn't stand those tears. "Heah's some catnip. Give her that." The kitten ate a little, then began to play with it. "My! That's fine medicine! Only two bites and she's better already. Reckon she wan't much sick. Jes thinkin' up some more mischief, mos likely."

Then there are the sloppy moving pictures which are so moving that they move the audience to a desire to throw bricks at them.

The dullest wit in the world can find an excuse for not working.
